AWARDS ACTION: Congrats to filmmaker Nadav Kurtz, whose “Paraiso” just won the best documentary short award at the Tribeca Film Festival — the prestigious film fest co-founded by Robert De Niro in the days following 9/11. “Paraiso” focuses on three Mexican immigrants, brothers

Sergio and Jaime Polanco and their cousin Cruz Guzman , who daily risk their lives working as Chicago high-rise window washers at Neal Zucker’s Corporate Cleaning Services — the city’s largest window-washing firm.

The film delves into the three men’s lives, their thoughts about rappelling up and down Our Town’s towers and the people they observe inside the buildings they clean.
