When you ask Chicagoans Roberto Duran, Pedro Castro and Alejandro Pantoja what they do for a living be prepared for an answer that will put a smile on your face.

Not only are these men window washers, they are also Super Heroes especially to the sick children at the Ann & Robert H. Lurie Children's Hospital located in downtown Chicago. The three men are employed by Corporate Cleaning Services, Chicago's largest all-union window washing company. When called to hero duty they don super hero suits and scale the massive structure, squeegee in hand.

You would think just scaling the massive skyscraper building would be enough to be considered a hero.

Watch out for them this weekend at Children's some of you might be lucky enough to see them in action.
