

With blizzard in mind, Neal Zucker takes birthday bash to Bahamas

A year after the Groundhog Day blizzard nearly buried his annual birthday bash, Neal Zucker is not taking any chances.

The CEO of Corporate Cleaning Co. — which washes windows of the Hancock and Trump buildings and many others in town — last year had chosen the Walnut Room at Macy's for his 45th birthday party.

But just days before the event, the big storm socked the city with a near-record 21.3 inches of snow that shut down businesses, schools, airports and Lake Shore Drive. (The record of 23 inches in 1967 still stands.)

A few days later, Mr. Zucker's 300 guests made it to the party, where they dined on the Walnut Room's famous chicken pot pie and shared stories of surviving the storm.

This year, I hear the party will be in sunshine. Mr. Zucker's good friend, M.K. Pritzker, is hosting the bash at her house — in the Bahamas.

She and husband J.B. Pritzker founder of New World Ventures, purchased the multimillion-dollar island retreat about a year ago.
